

From Mountains to Molehills

The months of February and March have seen much rain fall on the building site. With every window of opportunity between showers, the machinery has been digging and ripping and scrapping to turn the mud into compacted soil. Alas Mount Wesley is no more! The landscape sculpturing of the diggers is now constantly changing the silhouette of the site on a daily basis. One day it can resemble a newly plowed field ready for planting and the next a barren moonscape of rubble and molehills! One thing tho is certain, we are moving forward and with the change in seasons, the building site will soon start looking like a parking lot instead of a swimming pool. Keep praying for our workers for health and endurance as they toil on the Great Project and pray that Mother Nature is kind to us and we avoid any more extreme weather.
